Driving an 18-wheeler around the country, XM's local traffic/weather comes in very handy. I can find out immediately what the problems are in the markets covered and don't have to try and search for a local channel and wait for the traffic report. XM provides the programming that we as subscribers pay for gladly. If local stations provided these choices, there would be no need to buy satellite radio. The prudent route would be to reject the NAB's petition 04-160 to stop interference of XM's choice of programming.
